SEE PERJURY IN LORIMER TRIAL

B. A. Johnson Is Again on the Witness Stand.

SMASHES STORY OF BURGESS

"If Johnson's Testimony Is True, Burgess Fabricated from Whole Cloth?" Questions Senator Fletcher to Witness.

Washington, July 20.—The Lorimer committee is hard on the scent of perjury. Charles McGowan, the young Canadian whose testimony was so interesting to the committee, was not released from the jurisdiction of the committee, but was brought back to the witness room.

Attorneys and members of the committee are undecided whether to recall the young man to the stand to give him an opportunity to explain the discrepancies between his testimony and his affidavit, which also was introduced as evidence.

B. A. Johnson, who was in the smoking compartment of the Pullman sleeper on the occasion of the Burgess-Wiehe meeting, resumed the stand when the day's hearing started.

Mr. Johnson insisted that Mr. Wiehe left the smoking compartment early in the trip and that he shortly followed him. Under these circumstances it would be impossible for Mr. Burgess to hold his reported conversation with Mr. Hines' brother-in-law.

Senator Fletcher, speaking to the witness, said:

"Now, in the same compartment was a man apparently of sound mind and memory and good character, who has testified that there came a time when only three were in the compartment—Wiehe, McGowan and himself—and that the question of Senator Lorimer's election came up [reading the testimony of Mr. Burgess] and you say you heard no such conversation. It comes to this: If your testimony is true, Mr. Burgess has fabricated from the whole cloth?"

"I never doubted it from the beginning," said Mr. Johnson.

"That isn't what he asked you," interrupted Senator Kenyon.

"It never occurred in my presence," declared Mr. Johnson after Senator Fletcher had repeated the question.

John Benjamin Price, connected with the Puget Sound Lumber agency, and a son of James H. Price, former secretary of the state of Washington, was the next witness. He also was in the smoking compartment. He denied that the conversation could have taken place.

FARMER TOSSED BY BULL

Battle Creek, Mich., July 20.—Jerome Jourdan, a well known farmer living six miles east of Battle Creek, had a terrible experience with an enraged bull, his life being saved only by the bravery and prompt action of Floyd Cleveland, an employe. As it was, Jourdan is seriously hurt.

The farmer entered the field unarmed and was charged by the bull, which tossed him finally into a woven wire fence. Unable to move, Jourdan awaited the next attack just as Cleveland, seeing his predicament, outraced the bull and struck the animal in the head with a stone. Taking advantage of the bull's dazed condition Cleveland dragged Jourdan over the fence. A doctor found several of Jourdan's ribs broken and evidences of serious internal injuries.

RAID MT. CLEMENS GAMBLING

Detroit, July 20.—Under orders from Governor Osborn, Assistant Attorney General T. A. Lawler, with the Macomb county sheriff and his deputies raided six alleged gambling houses in Mount Clemens, Michigan's widely known bath city, and arrested the operators. The officers confiscated every piece of gambling paraphernalia and it required eight drays to carry the goods away.

Citizens of Mount Clemens and Macomb county have complained to the governor that local officers were not enforcing the law and letting gambling houses run unmolested.

FORMER YPSI GIRL OFFERED EXCELLENT STAGE POSITION

A dispatch from Detroit says that Miss Helen Pease, formerly a teacher in the Detroit Conservatory of Music, and well known in musical circles in this city, has just had the good fortune to be selected by George M. Cohen for a part in his new play, to be presented in his theater in New York during the coming season.

Miss Pease went to New York two months ago to try her chances in the histrionic field, and it was during a three weeks' vaudeville engagement that she attracted enough attention to bring her to the notice of Mr. Cohen, and the flattering offer of a place in the play followed. Her vaudeville fame came through an original piano monologue, which was a phenomenal success from its first presentation. Rehearsals for the new play will begin in a couple of weeks. Miss Pease is a sister of Marshall Pease, of the Detroit Consrvatory.

Dream Directed Her To Lost Purse

The guest of an Ypsilanti woman living on River street had a curious experience one day recently in the recovery of a purse she had lost. Coming down stairs one morning she said to her hostess that she had lost her purse, it having dropped out from her waist where she had been carrying it. Her hostess remarked that that had been a very careless place to carry a purse but helped her as best she could to search for it, but without avail. That night past midnight, the guest came downstairs and said, "I've just dreamed where I lost my purse. Come up with me while I look to see." She explained that she had dreamed that whie making her bed the purse had dropped out of her waist and fallen down between the mattress and the inner side of the bedstead. They accordingly looked there and there, indeed, was the lost purse.

The funeral of Mrs. Margaret O'Brien will be held at the Catholic church Friday morning at 9 o'clock.

DISAPPEARANCE OF WOMAN IS INVESTIGATED

Detroit, July 20.—The following note unsigned and written in lead pencil greeted John E. Davis, night clerk at the Hotel Oxford, when he returned to his room, 193 Lafayette boulevard, this morning.

"Darling: I can't sleep and I am simply crazy with my head and face, so I thought the best way out of it is to end it. So before long I will be with our ring. I am only a worry to you this way; you will be better off witout me. My suffering is terrible and it's getting worse all the time. So console yourself that I am better off than to live and be a misery to you and myself, too. If you want to, send or take my clothes home. You and papa and mama will have to console each other. I couldn't bear to go home. It's only a matter of a short time, anyway, the way my head is. Goodbye, darling. Do the best you can. Take care of the little ring for me."

Now Harbor Master Ellison is dragging the river at the foot of Third street for the body of Mrs. Davis, who before her marriage was Miss Virtle Grisso. Her father, John E. Grisso, is superintendent of manual training in the Cincinnati schools.

Several things make Mr. Davis convinced that his wife ender her sufferings in the river, chief among them being her intense love for the river. She had been in the city only a month, but in that time she had grown to love the water and spent most of her afternoons and evenings on the ferry boats.

"When I die I want to be buried in the Detroit river," she told her husband more than once, and in all seriousness.

A victim of nervous headaches ever since she suffered a sun stroke four years ago, her days and nights have been almost continuous pain and agony, according to Mr. Davis.

More than once she threatened to end her life because she could bear the suffering no longer. It was not only her own affliction, but the effect that her condition had on her husband that preyed upon her mind, as indicated by the letter.

The ring she spoke of "being with," Mr. Davis says, was their diamond engagement ring, which she lost in the river, along with a handbag, containing another diamond ring, a gold watch and other trinkets, valued at about $400, a week ago while riding on the ferry boat.

This loss weighed upon her also and added to her nervous condition and the acuteness of the headaches.

Concord, N. H., July 20.—The movement to preserve the Alcott homestead near Concord is gaining material headway. The so called "Orchard House" where Louisa M. Such an Organization Alleged in Cleveland.

Cleveland, O., July 20.—Four indictments were returned by the federal grand jury which has been investigating an alleged wall paper trust. The indictments charge a conspiracy in restraint of trade under the provisions of the Sherman anti-trust law.

The indicted men are all officials of wall paper jobbing houses. They are J. B. Pearce, president of the J. B Pearce Wall Paper company of Cleveland; Norton Newcomb of St. Louis, Edward E. Maxwell of Chicago, and C. C. Aler of Columbus, O. Bond was fixed at $5,000 in each case.

The specific charge is that they met in Cleveland on May 30, 1910, and after a secret session notified wall paper manufacturers of the country that if they sold wall paper to 5 and 10 cent stores the jobbers would boycott the manufacturers.

CONGRESS STREET BRIDGE REPAIRS NOW COMPLETED

Except for the final clearing away of debris, the Congress street bridge was completed Wednesday. In addition to strengthening the bridge from beneath, the roadway has been newly laid with stout planks, and this has been accomplished without interrupting the usual traffic over the bridge, only a portion of the planking having been taken up at one time.

The bridge crew, whose only business is to move from one part of the road to another where repairs are needed, have their own sleeping and boarding cars, but the excessively hot weather which has prevailed during their work in Ypsilanti has resulted in their sleeping in a big round tent pitched on the D., J. & C. grounds east of the switch running down into the gravel pit.

CITY IS PILLAGED BY REVOLUTIONISTS: ATTACK IS MADE

Cape Haitene, Haiti, July 20.—The city is at the mercy of the revolutionists and is being pillaged. All the generals opposed to the revolution have found refuge in the foreign consulates. The French consul was slightly wounded while offering protection to the local authorities.

Port Au Prince, Haiti, July 20.—The revoutionists occupied Cape Haitien last night. The enemy also attacked Fort Liberte as President Simon and his troops withdrew.

The cruiser Antonie Simon, en route to St. Marc and Gonaives, both occupied by revolutionists, will bombard these towns if the revolutionists refuse to withdraw. The diplomatic corps met at the call of American Minister Furniss and decided to protest against the bombardment of their unfortified towns.

President Simon arrived here on the German steamer Syria, accompinied by a large force of troops from Fort Liberte. The return of a sufficient force to garrison the town has temporarily relieved the anxiety of the people, who feared that the capital might fall before an attack of the revolutionists.

CITY IS PILLAGED BY REVOLUTIONISTS —ATTACK IS MADE

Dealers in oranges which have been taken from the trees when green and made yellow by placing then in artificial heat are to be dealt with as dealers in adulterated food stuffs by the federal government. The federal authorities have been studying the average sour orange of the common market and have found that it usually comes from orchards where fruit is treated to the artificial process. This results in leaving the acids of the green fruit remaining unchanged. If left on the trees to ripen properly the acids would give way to sugars.

SAVED BY SKIN OF FRIENDS

Wreck Victim Has 400 Pieces of Cuticle Grafted on His Body.

A year ago, when Nelson was taken from the Grand Trunk wreck at Durand, the physicians said he could not live. But despite untold agonies he survived the first month, and then the doctors put it up to his friends. George Miner, Ole Olson, Frank Floyd, all trainmen, came forward and allowed 101, 100, 135 and 75 graftings of skin respectively.

ANN ARBOR TRAIN STRUCK NEAR DEPOT BY ONCOMING FREIGHT

Ann Arbor, July 20.—The ping pong train on the Ann Arbor railroad which which arrives here from the lakes at 1:57 in the afternoon, was struck by a cut of freight cars near the Ann Arbor depot Wednesday, and the contents of a couple of the cars were scattered about the yards. Baggage Master Kelley and Engineer Crocker were quite painfully hurt and a number of passengers were more or less painfully bruised and shaken up. An amusing incident in connection with the wreck was the disappearance of a dog, billed for somebody in Ann Arbor, which leaped from the open door of the baggage car as soon as the crash occurred. It has not been seen since.

MISSOURI MAN COMPARES WEATHER IN MICHIGAN WITH THAT OF HIS STATE

James Gault, sheriff in Booneville, Missouri, while on his way down east, stopped off at Ypsilanti and made his cousin, John Gault, a visit on Tuesday. Mr. Gault was surprised that anyone should think that Michigan had been genuinely suffering from drought, for in his section of the country there has been no rain since April. The cows have been turned in to eat what corn survived the drought, the hay is burned up and potatoes are considered a luxury, and are paid three dolars a bushel for. The wheat crop is the only crop on which the farmers have based any hope whatever.

Atwood of Boston, who recently completed his aeroplane trip from that city to the national capital by way of New York and Atlantic City, is the first of the fliers to make a call on the president of the United States, arriving and departing by aeroplane. Atwood flew over the White House, alight upon the lawn directly in front of the portico, where President Taft, Secretary Hilles and Major Archibald Butt received him and the president presented him with a medal. After the visit Atwood resumed his seat and flew away.

CHICAGO LABOR CASES COLLAPSE

State's Principal Witness Found to be Unreliable.

MOSS ENRIGHT ALONE IS HELD

Chicago, July 20.—State's Attorney John E. W. Wayman, admitting that he had been grossly imposed upon by Frank Pardee, an ex-convict, dropped the cases against Simon O'Donnell, president of the Chicago Building Trades council, and Thomas Kearney and James Garvin.

This sudden action of the state's attorney ended the prosecution of the labor chiefs, who were indicted with Maurice ("Moss") Enright for the murder of Vincent Altman in the Briggs House March 22. Enright alone will stand trial for the crime.

"In view of the fact that the state and Inspector Hunt have been imposed upon by the witness Pardee, the only man through whom he had hoped to connect O'Donnell, Garvin, and Kearney, directly with the crime, the state now wishes to nolle pros the case against these three men," said Mr. Wayman.

"Insofar as the case against Enright is concerned, the state will stand."

The state had depended on Pardee to connect the "men higher up" with the murder. A letter found in the pocket of his clothes at his home led to the unearthing of the witness' record in Missouri, a detective employed by the defense was sent to St. Louis and positive evidence that Pardee had served a term for forgery was unearthed.

A prison photograph was found. This picture, when suddenly presented to the witness by Attorney James T. Brady, caused him to collapse, and with his collapse came the end to the state's case against the "men higher up."

Pardee had testified that, on the day before the murder, he was in a room adjoining room 508 of the Briggs House, and heard O'Donnell tell Enright:

"We have got to 'get' Vincent Altman. 'Mossie,' if you do the job, you get $500 and a new automobile."

Pardee swore that Kearney and Garvin were with Enright and O'Donnell. Pardee was Wayman's chief witness in his effort to show Judge Honore that the labor chiefs should not be admitted to bail.

TRUST'S GREAT POWER

Absolute Control in Hands of Sugar Refining Company.

New York, July 20.—Representative Madison of Kansas, a member of the house committee that is looking into the affairs of the American Sugar Refining company, gave to Washington B. Thomas, chairman of the board of directors, an opinion that the trust has at hand the machinery and the resources to grow in power until its control should be absolute, and he expressed his opinion of the tremendous responsibility that rests upon the government in fixing the relations between the company and the people. It is to make recommendations to congress on the Sherman anti-trust law that the committee was appointed.

Mr. Thomas couldn't suggest any way in which the deleterious use of this power could be averted. He said that whether it would be harmful or not depended largely upon the character of the men in whose hands such control rested.

THURSDAY, JULY 20, 1911

If the President yields to the hounding demand of the "interests" for the removal of Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, Chief of the Bureau of Chemistry of the Department of Agriculture, and author—father really— of the pure food law and its most efficient defender, he is likely to commit an act which will prove as unpopular as his retention of Secretary Ballinger after the people became thoroughly convinced of his unfitness for the office.

The most serious charge that seems to have been trumped up against Dr. Wiley thus far is that he has sought to interpret a law providing for the remuneration of expert chemists in a more liberal way for the chemists than the Attorney-General has held that it ought to be interpreted. Be this as it may, it would seem there ought to be some legal way to see to it that these experts are paid according to the interpretation of the legal department of the government, rather than according to the interpretation of the agricultural department.

The fight of the large interests (who are making their large fortunes out of food, much of which is questionable, and which is thought to be protected by the pure food law) to have Dr. Wiley removed, ought to be sufficiently suspicious to justify the President in giving the people the benefit of the doubt and retaining him until the interests have established by the burden of proof his guilt and a sufficient reason for his removal.

The big fight instituted and continued by the interests to try to pry Dr. Wiley off from his position against even the small use of a poison in the preserving of food has resulted in throwing dust in the eyes of the people to a large extent—to the extent of strenuously endeavoring to make them believe that they can take a certain amount of poison into their system each day in a food preservative, without causing any serious harm to them. In thus holding the search-light on this side of the question, they have permitted the people to forget that the chief objection to the use of this poison is that it permits these unscrupulous food manufacturers to purchase half-decayed fruit and preserve it with this stuff and that, and thus manufacture it into a food which the consumer could not readily tell is decayed fruit and consequently unfit for use. The people eat a great deal more of canned goods than they do of the fresh fruit during its season. The season is always short, and there is always a very large amount of decaying or decayed fruit that is a practical loss, and if this can be saved and made into food and palmed off on the people as the real article, the margin of profit in it is very many times as great as it would be otherwise.

CONGRATULATIONS TO MOUNT CLEMENS.

Mt. Clemens seems to illustrate that God still does not wish to destroy a city if there remains one good man therein. The one man who would not violate his oath of office but insisted that the state law against gambling should be enforced deserves the gratitude of his city. It is a wholesome example for other cities Governor Osborn deserves the thanks of the citizens at large for his prompt and thorough cooperation in raiding these dens of law defyers and confiscating their paraphernalia. In this Mt. Clemens got a much better job done than did we. If she will now use the evidence she has in punishing all these willful defyers of the public will, including not only the proprietors of these dens but the patronizers as well, she will give herself the advertising she now needs. And these undesirable citiens "caught with the goods" will follow their "folded tents" in a silent steal to jail or elsewhere to remain so long as Mt. Clemens furnishes continuing evidence of er fitness to be spared.

NORMAL BRIEFS

This is the last week the training school will be open, and already students who were drawn to Ypsilanti largely by the opportunity for observing in the training school are beginning to depart. Most of these students entered classes also, and they will receive statements as to what work they have accomplished while here.

Miss Bertha Goodison gave another illustrated lecture this morning in the course on art. German and Spanish artists were considered and the pictures shown on the screen were delightfully explained. Next Tuesday morning at eight o'clock Miss Goodison will give another stereopticon lecture on French artists, beginning with the early classical school and coming down to the realistic school.

Miss Olive Davis has accepted a position as training teacher in the new normal school at Monmouth, Oregon. The grade which she has been teaching at the Normal this year will be differently arranged for next year, the pubils being cared for probably at the Woodruff school.

Miss Edith Dixon will go to her home in Minonc, Minnesota, at the close of the summer term.

Miss Elizabeth McCrickett, of the training school faculty, entertained informally Wednesday with an afternoon tea for a group of Bay City teachers who are studying at the Normal this summer. Several members of the faculty were also invited. It was Miss McCrickett who established the kindergarten in the Bay City schools some years ago. Miss Smith and Roy Porsons sang.

A trip by boat to Port Huron was recently taken by Mrs. Seth Mereness and the party of eight teachers from Texas, who are attending the summer school. The party visited Miss Eugenia Mereness, who is spending the summer in Port Huron. The Texas people were particularly impressed with the color and clarity of the water, as the Texan rivers are notably muddy.

The Stoics have relinquished their plan of giving an entertainment Friday evening of this week, and, in view of the many affairs planned for the remainder of the summer school, it has been thought advisable to give it up altogether.

PESTS AND HOW TO TREAT THEM

TREES SUFFER FROM SMALL SCALE; OTHER NOTES OF INTEREST ABOUT FARMING AND GENERAL LAND IMPROVEMENTS.

THE SHOSHONE LAND OPENING.

On June 23 just past the United States government opened to homestead entry a choice tract of land in the famous Big Horn basin of Wyoming under what is known as the Shoshone irrigation project. Two units or sections of this project have already been settled, and water is now ready to be delivered to the third. The section just opened, which includes some of the most desirable land of the entire project, is located near the town at Ralston, and none of the farms is more than a mile from the railroad. Several hundred families have already located on the project, and those who are successful in getting a farm will have all the advantages of a well settled region—schools, churches, progressive stores, banks, etc., and good markets and railway facilities. The dam which stores water for the project is the highest in the world, completely blocking the course of the Shoshone river, and provides an ample water supply for all needs. While the price (cost of the water right) of this land was not stated in the notice which was generally published, it is quite likely in the neighborhood of $40 per acre, payable in ten annual equal payments without interest. These conditions put the lands in the Shoshone project within reach of any man of moderate means and determination who wants to get a home of his own on the land. The small amount he would have to pay annually on the investment, four or five dollars per acre, would be but a fair rent for the use of the land, and he could make these annual payments and more in growing small grain, alfalfa and other crops suited to the climatic conditions prevailing. Full information about this project and the exact terms on which the land may be secured may be got by addressing the United States reclamation service, 802 Federal building, Chicago, Ill.

JUST GRUBBING.

Too many folks who do not have to do so spend most of their time and most of their life "just grubbing." We here refer not to the class that are handicapped financially and are compelled to grub, but to a very large class that have more acres than they need, big red barns and bank accounts, yet who, in spite of this, delve and toil, deny themselves recreation, outings, holidays and not only the luxuries but many of the comforts of life. They forget that life is not measured by what one is able to save or to squeeze out of it, but by what it is possible to contribute and put into it. They seem to overlook the fact, too, that it does not take so very many years of this "just grubbing" to put a crook in one's back, take the elasticity out of one's step and dwarf or entirely extinguish one's capacity to enjoy things. More than this, they have at best but a few years here and will be a long time dead. So why scratch and scrimp and hoard and deny oneself wholesome food, decent clothing and a share in life's good things that are really worth while just to get title to a little more land and to a bigger bank account when the whole works will be left for heirs to divide or squabble over? There are a whole lot of fools outside of asylums for idiots and the feeble minded, and some of the biggest in the category are those who put in most of their lives "just grubbing."

SOME ARGUMENTS FOR IT.

The writer does not remember a season in a good many years when so many conditions seemed to urge the wisdom of installing silos all through the corn belt. In the first place, owing to the shortage in the hay crop, roughage of most every kind is likely to be high priced. Again, it is possible that many fields in the drought afflicted sections will be short in ears and that to realize what one ought from the whole corn plant it should be put into a silo. It is patent that this fall, if ever, it will be the height of folly to allow 40 per cent of the value of the corn plant to bleach and go to waste in the fields. Of course it is better if the corn is cut than not, but it is better put into a silo than put in shock and exposed to uncertain weather conditions. One of the strongest arguments in favor of installing a silo now, before the 1911 corn crop is ready to shred, is that it will provide a succulent ration during the winter months and next summer, when there is a possibility of just such a dry spell as we are now having. The job of filling the silo can be cheapened as well as simplified if three or four neighbors install them and unite in the purchase of the equipment used in shredding and filling.

A LATE SUMMER CROP.

In many sections where drought has prevailed during the past two or three months there are many gardens that will not yield a sufficient return to pay for plowing and seed, saying nothing about hoeing and cultivating which has been done since. In spite of the fact that it is late in the season, a portion of the garden may be made to give a return if one will sow turnip seed between now and Aug. 1. The soil may be very dry when the seed is sowed, but the first good shower will germinate them and a nice crop will be harvested in the late fall, if enough rain falls. We remember sowing turnip seed in this way on the site of an old strawberry bed, and sold from $12 to $15 worth of turnips in the fall. It was in a season much like this when potatoes were very high priced.

THE OYSTER SHELL BARK LOUSE.

A reader of these notes brings us a twig from an apple tree quite badly infected with a scale which is gray in color, a little wider than the body of a pin and about an eighth of an inch long. These scales are scattered thick on the small limbs and, our friend says, have practically killed several young trees, having been at work for the past two or three years. This scale is the protective covering of the oyster shell bark louse, which is safe beneath it and is able to suck the juices of the bark unmolested. While it is a pest that does not spread in an orchard with great rapidity, it is nevertheless one that should be combatted vigorously. The best spray to use is the lime-sulphur, which may be applied in the fall after the leaves have fallen or in the early spring before they start. One can buy good commercial lime-sulphur in quantity desired or make it at home. For a small amount bring five gallons of water to a boil, preferably in an iron receptacle, and add five pounds of fresh stone lime and about three and three-fourths pounds of flour of sulphur, the latter being made into a paste by mixing with a small amount of water. This solution should be boiled for about an hour, or until a clear liquid results. It should then be diluted to about tweive gallons and applied when warm to trees already infected and others in the same tract. A less effective solution for immediate use while the trees are in leaf is the kerosene emulsion, made by dissolving a pound of soap in a gallon of hot water and adding thereto while still warm two gallons of kerosene. This should be stirred and churned until a cream emulsion results, which before using should be diluted in about twelve gallons of water. In spraying the trees especial care should be taken to see that all parts of the tree are covered, so that the destruction of the pest will be complete.

A TERRIBLE DROUGHT.

If reports coming direct from the country west of the Missouri river can be believed there are sections of the territory mentioned which are now experiencing the worst and most disastrous drought in a period of thirty or forty years. It has been aggravated greatly owing to the fact that the drought of the present season follows on the heels of the unusually protracted dry spell of last year. In many localities the soil was so dry the past spring that the seed sown has not yet germinated. In other sections where the seed germinated and grew and gave promise of abundant yield harvest hopes have been blasted by week after week of withering, blistering, burning heat, with no refreshing rain or cool interval to stay the disaster, which in Oklahoma and portions of Kansas, Nebraska and South Dakota seems to be about as complete as could be. Thousands of unfortunate homesteaders in the drought stricken belt, with reserve depleted as a result of last year's drought, will have to have aid where they are, starve or leave their claims and throw themselves on the mercy and support of relatives and friends. In many states farther east the drought has been severe, but has been relieved at intervals by rain, but in the territory first mentioned it has been well nigh indescribable.

A BLESSING IN DISGUISE.

A calamity is often a blessing in disguise. In no event of large importance has the truth of this fact been more forcefully demonstrated than in the visitation upon certain sections of the south of the cotton boll weevil. For a time dire disaster seemed about to overwhelm the localities visited by the pest, but the very fact that tillers of the soil were compelled to turn to the raising of other crops—corn, milo maize, field peas and beans, clover and alfalfa—and to dairying and stock raising has, in fact, been of the greatest possible benefit to the pest ridden sections. Some important lessons have been gleaned from the experience, among them that there is more money in diversified farming than in cotton raising, that soil fertility can be maintained and even increased if the legumes are used in rotation and if dairying and stock raising is carried on; that more cotton can be produced per acre in rotation with other crops, and that the boll weevil pest is greatly reduced as a direct result of rotation. It has further demonstrated pretty clearly to the southern cotton grower that he can just as well produce on his own plantation a whole lot of the things he has been shipping in from a distance at long prices and heavy transportation charges.

THE HIGHWAY MUTILATOR.

A good many folk who travel country roads by auto or team hope for the day to come when a newly appointed road supervisor shall not think he has done his full duty along the line of highway improvement when he has heaped a lot of roadside sod and soft earth into the middle of the highway and left it there without pulverizing, dragging or top dressing of any kind whatever. We know of a number of instances where really good stretches of road top dressed with gravel not so very long ago, but worn a bit, have been mutilated in the above fashion and rendered well nigh impassable. Men who know no more about the science of road building than this might be appointed township dog catchers, but they should not be given appointment as road supervisor.

MARBLE HOUSE OPENS.

MRS. O. H. P. BELMONT.

Smart society at Newport is interested in the opening of Marble House by Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, for it is believed that this fact indicates the Duchess of Marlborough is likely to come over with her two sons to visit her mother for part of the season. Mrs. Belmont has not occupied this palace for a number of seasons, and that she should do so now is a matter of gratification to members of the smart set, who hope that she may entertain as of old. Even if her daughter does not come to America Mrs. Belmont has her son Harold with her and may give something for him. Her entertainments are never dull, and, although she is so active a suffragist and for some time has given most of her attention to the movement, she is still as secure in social leadership as ever.

A PICNIC DAINTY.

A glorious dish for the picnic or other outdoor frolic is jellied ham. It looks just as nice as it tastes, and that is saying a good deal. Good Housekeeping tells how to make it, and if you have a wish to try it here is the recipe:

Mince fine sufficient cold boiled ham to make a cupful, season well with salt, pepper, paprika and a few drops of onion juice and moisten with one cupful of thick sauce to which have been added a little red coloring and a heaping teaspoonful of granulated gelatin dissolved in cold water. Have ready a number of small molds lined with aspic jelly, fill the molds with the ham mixture and set in a cold place to harden. Turn out and serve very cold with mayonnaise dressing.

Necklaces and Buckles.

Necklaces will undoubtedly continue their present popularity, says the Dry Goods Economist. In these the indications are that the thin or delicate chains equipped with a single pendant, generally accompanied by a dainty drop of some kind or other, preferably in a color harmonizing with either the wearer's millinery or costume, will be most favored.

Girdles of all kinds will be a strong feature of fancy gowns next fall and winter. Those composed of wooden beads in a latticework will be used alone and as a bordering on chiffon, satin, etc. Linked metal and jeweled effects are shown in the new lines, and wide black velvet ribbon girdles with the ends elaborately embroidered in gold, silver, bright silks and chenille and frequently studded with imitation jewelry.

The Gas Stove.

To economize in the use of gas observe these rules:

The burner may be extinguished a few moments before your cooking is finished and still retain heat enough for the purpose.

At night turn off the stopcock between the stove and the main pipe to prevent waste.

THE NATIONAL BONE ARTIST.

Man Who Mounts Skeletons For the Smithsonian.

DIVISION CALLED BONE YARD.

J. W. Scollick Mounts Everything From an Elephant to a Bat—Wiring Bones Together Is Delicate Work and Gets on the Nerves—Small Skeletons Mounted Against Glass.

J. W. Scollick of the National museum in Washington is a craftsman in a trade with probably the smallest competition in the world. He is the official "bone man" of the government, or, in other words, the expert in charge of the work of cleaning, articulating and mounting skeletons at the museum, a trade by itself and one requiring infinite patience and great technical skill.

The removal of the National museum from the old to the new building has resulted in the division of skeletons being given larger quarters, and the display has been arranged so as to give it more prominence than ever. To employees of the museum and many visitors this division is known as the "bone yard."

Perhaps there is not the attraction in it for the average visitor that there is in the display of mounted animals and the big cases of ethnological groups, but it is one of the most remarkable collections in the whole museum. Mr. Scollick has been in charge of this work for years. The display in the museum is largely his work.

The exhibits range all the way from a full grown elephant to a herring. Each of them represents weeks of technical skill apparently out of all proportion to the finished result. Though there is more labor in the work, the larger skeletons are the easier to handle. The collection includes elephants, rhinoceroses, horses, gorillas, the larger monkeys, all sorts of deer, man himself and many mammals.

Wires, Springs and Braces.

Every bone in these big skeletons has to be drilled and articulated with wires, springs and metal braces. Although these do not show, it is necessary that they be put in place with mathematical precision to give the natural appearance. And then, too, everything must be scientifically just so. It is this which makes the finished work apparently so easy, but in reality so difficult.

The smaller skeletons, like lizards, small fish, bats and snakes, are not held together by wires. Their own cartilage dried in place is used to hold them together. This is one of the many reasons why a skeleton that is dried and mounted is never boiled. Not only would the boiling make the bones fall apart, but it would drive in the grease and make the bones yellow, the one thing not desired. The flesh is taken off the raw bones with a scraper and then the bones are carefully washed clean of grease with gasoline. Acids are not used at all except on rare occasions to remove a stain.

Carelessness Is Fatal.

Great care must be exercised in the drying and bleaching of the bones. This cannot be done in a hot sun, because the hot sun will crack the bones, as it will seasoning wood. From a bone artist's viewpoint the best bleaching weather is a gray, drizzling day, when there is no danger of the sun getting in its damaging work. Sometimes the bones develop black streaks, but this can usually be remedied with the use of dilute ammonia.

From beginning to end the whole skeleton cleaning process is tiresome and is said to "get on the nerves" worse than any other form of specimen mounting carried on at the museum. Weeks of cleaning are required to prepare some of the small fish skeletons, some of which have to be mounted against glass to keep them properly assembled for display. The bat skeletons, with their long, delicate wings, are also mounted in this way.

SONG AFFECTS A TRADE.

"Steamboat Bill" Increases Supply of Roustabouts.

"If 'Steamboat Bill' had not made such a hit with the negroes in all parts of the Mississippi valley we steamboat men would have been spared much trouble. As it is, so many want jobs that there are not enough places for them."

This was the observation of a New Orleans steamboat man recently. The chorus of "Steamboat Bill" runs:

Steamboat Bill, Steamboat Bill,
Steaming down the Mississippi.
Steamboat Bill, a mighty man was he,
Steamboat Bill steaming down the Mississippi,

It has not been long since the steamers leaving New Orleans had the greatest difficulty in hiring roustabouts to handle the cargoes of freight. Suddenly, the mates say, they were literally besieged with applications, and they attribute the fact to the song "Steamboat Bill."

"The men say they want to get into the steamboat business and declare that they are indifferent as to the points on the river touched by the packets or how long they are gone."

Feet Tired-So Tired?

It's the sure remedy, you know, for everything that gets the matter with your feet. It's for sore feet and for sweaty, bad-smeling feet, and for corns, callouses and bunions, too.

"For years I have been troubled with sore and tender feet; suffered intense pains. Have had the assistance of physicians without relief. I bought a box of TIZ, which worked a perfect cure, as it has with a great many of my friends. I would not be without it. All it requires is to be known to be universally used." A. F. Druetzer, Chicago.

TIZ is not a powder. Powders and other foot remedies clog up the pores. TIZ draws out all poisonous exudations which bring on soreness of the feet, and is the only remedy that does. TIZ cleans out every pore and glorifies the feet—your feet.

You'll never limp again or draw up your face in pain, and you'll forget about your corns, bunions and callouses. You'll feel like a new person.

TIZ is for sale at all druggists, 25 cents per box, or it will be sent you direct, if you wish, from Walter Luther Dodge & Co., Chicago, Ill.

The Carpet.

The primary use of carpets was to cover tables. Carpet making, as a modern industry, was first developed in France. That country had large factories and a monopoly in Europe of the art of carpet-weaving when a rush-strewn floor was the rule even in the royal palaces of Britain. It was the expulsion of the Huguenots from France that caused many of the carpet craftsmen to cross the channel and settle at Bristol, Axminster, and other places now known to us as centers of the carpet industry. This country has now become pre-eminent in carpet-weaving, for the same reason that it has won first rank in all the other textile arts—not through devising new weaves, but by the invention of numberless time and labor saving devices in carpet-looms.—Exchange.

DIRE DISTRESS

Neglect hurrying to their aid

Means that urinary troubles follow quickly,

Dire distress, diabetes, Bright's disease.

Mrs. Thomas Barnum 23 Water St, Ypsilanti, Mich., says: "About a year ago I began to suffer from kidney trouble brought on by a heavy cold. I had such severe pains across the small of my back that I could scarcely stoop or lift and none of the remedies I tried brought me more than temporary relief. Often it was difficult for me to get up from a sitting position on account of sharp twinges through my body. I was also troubled by painful passages of the kidney secretions. Upon using Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from Weinmann-Matthews Co.'s Drug Store, I soon found relief and before long I felt like a different person." (From statement given Dec., 1906.)

NO TROUBLE SINCE.

On Dec. 16, 1908, Mrs. Barnum added: "I still recommend Doan's Kidney Pills highly as I have never had any serious recurrence of kidney trouble."

DO YOU know of anyone who is old enough to read, who has not seen that sign at a railroad crossing?

If everyone has seen it at some time or other, then why doesn't the railroad let the sign rot away? Why does the railroad company continue to keep those signs at every crossing?

Maybe you think, Mr. Merchant, "Most everybody knows my store, I don't have to advertise."

Your store and your goods need more advertising than the railroads need do to warn people to "Look Out for the Cars."

The Department Stores are a very good example—they are continually advertising—and they are continually doing a good business.

If it pays to run a few ads 'round about Christmas time, it certainly will pay you to run advertisements about all the time.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

HOT WEATHER HURTS THE SKIN

To wash away the poison entirely, apply a simple solution known as D. D. D. Prescription for Eczema. D. D. D. is generally sold in $1.00 bottles, but for 25c we can now give you enough to prove that the very first drops soothe and heal the inflamed skin as nothing else can.

We vouch for the wonderful properties of D. D. D., for we know that it brings instant relief for all kinds of skin trouble.
